FERRIS WILL GIVE TOWNSEND BATTLE AT MICHIGAN POLL

DEMOCRATS HAVE FIGHTING CHANCE TO ELECT U. S. SENATOR.

RADICAL SUPPORT

Former Governor Will Have Newberry Foes' Backing; Dry Issue Up.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1922, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Detroit, Mich.—The democrats have the best chance of electing a United States senator in Michigan that they have had since the civil war. Translated into political actualities, however, this is only another way of saying that the republican majority of 350,000 will be extensively reduced and Senator Townsend, republican, will pull through by a relatively small margin.

The campaign has hardly been begun but it will be admitted that former Gov. Ferris, who is running for the United States senate on the democratic ticket, is a fascinating speaker and a vote-gather. Twice he carried this state, and to do so any democrat must win the republican voters to his standard by tens of thousands. His strength was not sufficient, however, two years ago to offset the Harding tide and he was defeated by 260,000, which was only 80,000 better than the democratic totals for president.

Hopes of Ferris.

Those who believe that former Governor Ferris has a chance in this race base their hunch on the fact that he has twice beaten a republican state of about twice as this and they argue that the 1920 landslide would have buried anybody. Mr. Ferris makes friends on the stump and draws immense crowds. He twists his opponent constantly and promises an interesting campaign for Michigan.

As for issues, the chief complaint against Senator Townsend is that he refused to vote to unseat his colleague, Truman H. Newberry. There is a good deal of agitation over Newberryism. It did not start after the primaries, however. The 125,000 votes which Herbert Baker got in the republican primaries for United States senator is variously described as "sinister" and "significant." It's the same type of vote that helped Roosevelt sweep the state against

Denied Divorce from Wife After Half Million Dollar Court Battle

Ex-Banker Loses Sensational Suit; Baby Legitimate

(By Associated Press)

Carmel, N. Y.—James A. Stillman, former president of the National City bank of New York, was denied a decree in his suit for absolute divorce against his wife, Anne U. Stillman, and the baby, Guy Stillman, was declared legitimate in the findings of the referee, Robert Baker, in the case, which was filed here Friday. The referee's decision was a complete victory for Mrs. Stillman. Not only was her defense upheld, but the referee also confirmed her charges that

Mr. Stillman had misconducted himself with Florence H. Leeds, former Broadway show girl, and that Mrs. Leeds had borne two children. In regard to Mr. Stillman's charges that the banker had also misconducted himself with other women, he denied only that "Helen" and "Clara" Reference Gleeson, decided the evidence was not sufficient to prove Wausau—The 1923 legislative program of the Wisconsin Consumers' League was endorsed and sections of it restated in resolutions and officers elected at Friday's session of the 28th annual convention of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs.

The referee wrote the testimony adduced by Mr. Stillman in support of his charges that Mrs. Stillman misconducted herself with Fred Benavals, Indian guide alleged by the banker to be the father of little Guy Stillman, "uncontradicted and unexplained was sufficient to justify him in believing Mrs. Stillman guilty of the charges made against her."

A careful examination, however, of all the testimony adduced in the report has shaken my faith and belief in the testimony of the witnesses called in the plaintiff's behalf," he said.

The referee held that Mr. Stillman had no evidence to overcome the presumption of legitimacy, "which is one of the strongest known to the law and which can not be overthrown except by evidence which is stronger."

On the other hand, the report found the proof of Mrs. Stillman's re-crminating charges that her husband had supported and maintained Florence H. Leeds as his wife and that she had given birth to two children "recognized by him" had been "so overwhelming and convincing that the plaintiff's attorney frankly stated to the referee that no denial would be made of the charges."

"Dribby is charged."

Mr. Stillman, the referee held, not only offered evidence tending to establish the untrue and many of the evidence of misconduct by her and Benavals, but also presented evidence which showed that agents of Mr. Stillman offered inducements of money and positions to witnesses who would testify that his wife had misbehaved with the Indian guide.

In conclusion, it was recommended that the plaintiff's complaint should be dismissed.

The referee's report, on motion by either side, will go to Supreme Court Justice Morschauser for confirmation or rejection. It is expected Justice Morschauser will uphold the findings.

Spent Half Million

Altogether Mr. Stillman was believed to have spent far in excess of $500,000 in his divorce litigation. The amount turned over to Mrs. Stillman's Menace Grows Despite FRANTIC WORK OF HUNDREDS.

12,000 Acres Burned Over in Northern Minnesota; Soldiers Battle Flames.

(By Associated Press)

St. Paul.—The potential menace forest fires, burning in north and central Minnesota had risen Friday with the wild and military and forestry officials directing the work of fire fighting expressed fear that the situation will show no sign of abatement according to reports from the fire zone.

The most serious aspect of the whole situation, according to Major Gilkeson, assistant to Adjutant General Rhinow, seems to be that the fires, about 45 miles west northwest and southwest of Duluth are forming a semi-circle. If these fires join and a high wind springs up, officials said they are in doubt that it will spread havoc to the small communities in that district.

Marching fires also were reported to the State forester from Koochiching County where 400 men are battling the flames which have burned over more than 12,000 acres.

News for Farmers

Farm Bureau Official Information

Farmers Pleased
With Tariff

Stock Sales

Are Scheduled

Commenting on the new tariff law and the Farm Bureau's part in representing the farmers of America in this legislation, Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation says:

"Agriculture has obtained duties on almost every commodity on which it desired a tariff, and the rates are in most instances as high as was requested."

possibly the most effective rate in the entire agricultural schedule is on wool, upon which 31 cents per pound is levied. Section seven of the Tariff Act covers a wide range of agricultural commodities and scattered throughout the bill are numerous items bearing directly upon agriculture, such as fertilizer and spray materials.

It is up to supply either through its own activities or those of the commodity organizations, information regarding practically all of the agricultural schedules and also on fertilizer and spray materials.

"Despite the strenuous efforts of the advocates of the tariff on potato and embargo on dyes, the conference were forced to strike both of these provisions from the bill. Unfortunately, the Bureau was not equipped to go into the more than 2,000 items covered in the tariff bill, but as the organization grows I hope we will be in a position to present our views as forcefully on the tariff as a whole as we have been able to do on the agricultural items."

Holstein Ass'n to Boost Pure Breds

Chicago—Dairy leaders from all over the United States will meet at the invitation of the Holstein-Presbyterian Association of America Thursday evening, Oct. 12, during the week of the national dairy show at St. Paul, for the purpose of discussing plans for a wider distribution of pure bred sires in the dairy districts this winter.

The purpose of this meeting is twofold. Association officials realize the progress on pure bred sire work has not received the support of the rank and file of the pure bred breeders themselves, that it is entitled to, and the association further recognizes in the national dairy show an institution which has awakened the interest of the northwest to better livestock and whose special efforts in this direction make a most opportune opening for remedying the situation.

Farm bureaus and the United States department of agriculture have done most of the work in this particular way, but have been assisted by "viscous bankers" associations and individual bankers in the various communities, chambers of commerce, railroad executives and others, but not by the breeders' associations as a body.

It is hoped the discussion will attract besides the duties of Holstein cattle a large number of average dairymen and farm leaders.

MOVIELAND

Hugo Ballin, producer and director of "June Eve," "East Lynne," "Married People" and numerous other favorites starring his wife, Mabel Ballin, is asking the public to select the next picture he makes. The story which receives the greatest number of votes will be the one chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Ballin for next production. He has already received hundreds of suggestions and is asking for more. Just at present one of the classics leads in public favor.

The final date on which suggestions will be received is September 15, 1922. If you know a good story or have a favorite book or play you would like to see on the screen just post card the word to the Ballins, 1605 Times Building, New York City.

This new policy of Mr. and Mrs. Ballin will continue after the first picture from a story selected by the public is made. At present Mr. Ballin is planning a series of "specials" to be adapted from stories selected only by the public.

Dorothy Devore, well known to Christie Comedy fans, was recently given three months in which to learn "to ride a race horse and ride it well." It looks as if Dorothy had to learn to know a race horse also for she seems to have picked the wrong beast.

QUALITY MONEY

Notice any difference in the feel of your paper money? Well, it contains 75 per cent linen for the first time since the war. It was pure cotton for a while. Last year 50 per cent of linen was used. The present fiscal year marks the complete restoration of old-time "quality" money.

What's much more important to all of us, though, is the revival of its normal BUYING quality. In whatever department of this store you meet them, fall prices have the familiar characteristics of old friends. With both quality goods and quality dollars in abundance, it is no wonder Autumn 1922 is witnessing the high-tide of buying.

MISSING DEAF BOY OF DELAVAN FOUND

Located in Milwaukee, Walking Streets; Must Undergo Operation.

Delavan—Clayton Keach, 19 year old deaf mute, who disappeared from the state school for the deaf Saturday, was found wandering about the streets of Milwaukee in the midnight. Thrown out by Super T. Ernest Bray. The youth had obtained employment at a chair factory but was dismissed after fainting at his work.

Keach was examined by a Milwaukee physician who found a growth at the base of the brain and announced an operation would be necessary. He returned to the school Friday morning with Mr. Bray. The Red Cross and the Milwaukee police in Milwaukee assisted in the hunt. The first clue to the whereabouts of Keach was given Mr. Bray Thursday by a Mr. Parks living at East Troy, who read of the boy's disappearance in The Janesville Gazette. Keach had supper at the Parks home Saturday night and told him he was going to Milwaukee.

The mother of the boy has been notified and is expected Saturday from Neillsville.

Send every energy to finish the high school building so it may be used before the end of 1922. With the completion, the problem of a community center will be solved.

Janesville has a fine, comfortable hotel facilities to care for the public. That will be especially true when the high school is completed and the auditorium is available for the larger community.

Financing of the Janesville streets, as soon as there can be the necessary ren-heavy burden on the people.

NO WAY TO GET AHEAD IN THIS WORLD

The hobo sitting on the steps of a public library complaining that there was no chance for an education in this world is typical of the others who while loafing at a pool room or milling about the streets, inveigh against the country and say that opportunity is no longer given for advancement.

Enos Mills died a few days ago. He was a sickly boy. He had no advantages of a public school education. At 14 the family doctor told him that he must live in the open. He waited outside at a summer hotel. The marvelous works of nature in Colorado fascinated him. Enos had the requisites for scholarship—desire to know. He gathered a great store of unclassified information. In summer he went camping; in winter he worked in a copper mine. He was growing stronger physically when along came John Muir, naturalist and because young Mills wanted to learn and to know, took him as a pupil. Painfully Enos Mills learned to read and write and in writing put his thoughts into books which have become standards of information. He had an objective. He became one of the nation's foremost naturalists and gave to us the plan of great parks and aided in the preservation for the people, those natural places in the west which will forever be the possessions of all.

Had he been like the pool room loafer or the hobo on the library steps, he would have remained until his death a waiter, a minor or in some menial capacity, perhaps cursing the world that he had not been born to a better fate and that opportunity had been denied him. We have more advantages here in Janesville than were given to Mills. There are vocational schools, a public library, a state generous with its books and helps, —opportunity simply calling aloud on every hand.
He who has deaf ears will not hear. To him who gives heed there is no place in the life of the world to which he may not aspire and eventually arrive.

Even Mrs. Leads' money couldn't make Constantine popular.

THE THIN BLUE LINE

Milwaukee is to have the next national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. Wisconsin will join with the metropolis of the state in making this a memorable gathering. The reputation of Milwaukee for hospitably caring for a great meeting of this character should bring the largest possible attendance. The encampment just completed at Des Moines emphasized the waning ranks of the veterans of the civil war. It is 61 years since Ft. Sumter was fired upon. It is 50 years since Gettysburg. It is 57 years since Lee surrendered at Appomattox. It has been an ordinary lifetime since these events and we can not expect that any large number of the men who have gone through the campaigns of the war will be able to recall the stirring days of battle and march in encampments for many more years.
Each year the final roll call is answered by several thousand of the veterans, each year the line becomes thinner. Each year we thrill at the stories told, at the recital of the deeds which made the Grand Army famous the world over, and are glad that Thus has left the rear guard for our inspiration to a greater love of a country united and free.

In order to protect the automobilist, lamp posts should be made of rubber.

AND THEN WHAT ABOUT NEW JERSEY?

Here comes New Jersey, once a democratic state, the state that gave Wilson to the nation, the home of the wets, the place of Governor Edwards who is the wettest thing west of the Atlantic ocean, nominating Senator Frelinghuysen, personal friend and companion of the president, on a platform as dry as Jefferson county district attorney.

The outstanding issue in the Jersey campaign was prohibition. The old brewery crowd in Newark and Jersey City, which forsooth many years dictated the political life of the state opposed Frelinghuysen and supported Judge George L. Record. But Mr. Record did not get any farther in the race than a running start for first base. Mr. Frelinghuysen, by reason of his affiliation with President Harding, was also a target by the opposition to the president. He won also on this issue. There are many republicans who do not agree with the president in his bonus position and others are of the opinion that Mr.
Daugherty is a Jonah to be thrown overboard, and in the general run these are but incidents and are not necessarily fatal. Evidently the hope of the wets in a general defeat of candidates for the senate and the election of a majority of wet congressmen to over throw the Volstead act and start legislation for the repeal of the 18th amendment, has received a severe set-back in New Jersey. If

Secret Agents in Washington

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—Novelists could well afford to withdraw their attention from abroad and concentrate on Washington for material for those thrilling stories of espionage and political intrigue which the public so eagerly devours. Since the war Washington has become, in a certain sense, the capital of the world. With all nations looking to the United States as the leader of international activity, our national capital has taken on increased importance.

Washington, as a headquarters for diplomatic activity, has long had considerable value, but never so much as at present. The increased business of this character started with the war when the propagandists and diplomats, special commissioners and plenipotentiaries of all principal nations came here as steel is drawn to a magnet. Nearly all of them have stayed and plied their trade as diligently as ever.

The treaty of Versailles provided for several new states in pursuance of the doctrine of self-determination which President Wilson introduced at the peace table. All of these nations were born in turmoil and have been encountering difficulties in holding their hard-won identity.

The opinion has become fixed in Europe that a government can accomplish almost anything by convincing the American public of the justice of its cause. It seems that the whole world bows to the collective American mind and, in consequence, every effort is made to appeal to that mind.

The foreign lobbies frequently take the form of information bureaus. Such countries as Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania have bureaus with headquarters at Washington whence millions of words of "information" are sent broadcast to the American press showing the development of each country, stating its nationalistic aims and frequently holding up to scorn the conflicting aspirations of other peoples. The information bureau is the successor of the old fashioned diplomatic agency or junta which used to be in vogue here.

There is no doubt that these bureaus make a substantial impression throughout the country and it appears their home governments are well justified in believing that the American press is as important, if not more so, than the department of state in connection with American affairs.

The newspapers in the last year have had a good deal to say about the Chita government. It will be recalled that the conference on the limitation of armaments devoted no little attention to this small nation, officially known as the Far Eastern Republic. Much of this attention arose from the efficiency of the Washington information bureau maintained by the Chita government, which at a psychological moment issued statements to the press or, in other words, to that vague collective factor in world affairs, the American mind.

The development has gone so far that several of the old established embassies maintain on their diplomatic staffs, highly trained newspaper correspondents. Sometimes these are brought from the home countries and have such impressive titles as press attaché. More frequently they are American journalists employed in this country. It is the general opinion that the best results are obtained from the American newspaper man because he is more familiar with the American mind.

All readers of American newspapers have seen a great deal of agitation concerning Philippine independence. This springs largely from the information bureau maintained at the expense of the taxpayers of the Philippines Islands, for the sole purpose of telling Americans about the Philippines.

The Irish nationalists have maintained such a bureau here for years and many observers believe that Ireland's independence resulted in part from the activities of this bureau in convincing the American mind.

Half the Latin American governments use this method of presenting themselves to the public. Foreign governments not only send special ministers and ambassadors to the governments of the United States; they also send special ambassadors, in the form of press agents, to the American mind.

Many fascinating stories of the diplomatic battles which are fought out by these press representatives and information bureaus could be told and back of their activities there are many incidents romantic and interesting enough to vie with the best stories of international spies.

The order of things has not changed wholly and there remain some of the old fashioned and highly romantic secret agents. It must be borne in mind that in about half of the smaller Latin American republics there is a party of malcontents which is always seeking an opportunity to obtain power. In this country when a party is out of office it seeks to return through the medium of the polls and the ballot box. In many of the Latin American countries the more direct method of revolution or military coup is preferred. Each of these out-of-office parties knows that when the time comes and the coup is executed the first thing to be done is to gain financial support in the United States and the diplomatic recognition of the American state department.

Therefore all such factions maintain juntas or secret agencies at Washington and some have branches in New York.

The secret agents did not leave Washington.

They bought gum shoes to take the place of the silent carpets of the old Arlington and betook themselves to other hotels; less congenial to be sure, but they are to be seen on the roof garden of the city, in its many parks and motor-ways and at other places where society congregates.

The job of secret agent apparently is a lucrative as well as diverting one. They all seem to have plenty of funds and to live well. What they accomplish is difficult to measure—doubtless a good deal in some cases and nothing in others—but so long as Washington is the capital of the world, they may be expected to appear in increasing numbers. Washington likes them. They are ornamental and give a cosmopolitan atmosphere which no city, especially a capital, could afford to desire.

That state, so long associated with boss ridden politics and the brewery combine, takes so firm a stand for prohibition in a primary, what hope has the association for the repeal of the prohibition amendment in obtaining enough votes to win?

GRAIN

Chicago Review.

Chicago.—Wheat averaged, moderately higher in price Friday, during the day's session, chiefly as a result of an advance in Liverpool quotations, despite an easy close here. Thursday, developments at the Durbarrows were also construed in many quarters as more favorable, before the arrival of full dispatches pointing to the conclusion of a strictcece arranged with the next 24 hours. Smallness of offerings was the chief factor, and was urged too as a bullish sign. The market, which ranged from a decline to 7¢ advance, with Dec. $1.05 1/2 @ 1.05 1/2, and May $1.05 1/2 @ 1.05, was followed by a continued advance, especially in the late months.

In the last half of the day the market failed to show much activity and price lacked support.

Wheat.—In the wheat market Friday after upturns in price had been the rule throughout the first part of the period of trade session. When wheat closed back, Corn closed higher, at 64 1/2¢, and was followed with December 65 1/2¢.

Outs started unchanged to 7¢ advance, Dec. 37 1/2¢, and later secured a slight additional advance. Provision was given.

Willet Is Named G.A.R. Commander

(By Associated Press.)

Mr. Willett—Installation of officers, elected late Thursday, and adoption of resolutions is all that remains for veterans of the G. A. R. to do before adjourning their 55th annual encampment. The election of Judge J. W. Willett of Tomah as commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. depends upon a precedent of 50 years' standing. He is the first veteran who served as a sailor during the Civil war, to be chosen.

Blues in Scrappy Mood for Harvard, Says Coach

The lineup against Harvard in the opening game of the season here Saturday will be in doubt until the team walks upon the field. There are so many men scrapping for positions that the coaches will not have a definite arrangement of players until after Saturday's and the following game.

The contest will start at 2:30. Molsey Dalton, now with Racine, will referee.

"The boys are developing a great amount of scrap," said Head Coach C. V. Klonitz Friday. "Harvard will know they have been in a tough battle. The boys have determination. We ought to have 500 students at the field which shows the student body will be back of us. We have a tough schedule to go through this year and no comparison can be made with the schedule of last year."

When the lads go on the field they will be attired in new uniforms. The field will not be fenced in this year, someone having appropriated the posts and wire bought for this purpose last year. The purchase of new wire has made it impossible to buy new fencing. Men of the cavalry may be used. Coach Klonitz urges the crowd to keep back from the field.

Because Delavan will not have a team this year, the game on Nov. 10 has been cancelled. Another team is expected to be substituted.

Washington—Cholera has been reduced to an almost negligible number of cases this summer in Petrograd as a result of sanitary measures introduced by the medical forces of the American Relief Administration through purification of the city's water supply and the inoculation of 50,000 persons. Purification of the water by the introduction of 250 tons of chlorine was made possible through funds furnished by the American Relief Administration. It is the opinion of the A. R. A. medical men in the field that cholera and other summer diseases in Russia will be reduced to a minimum in districts where it has been possible to carry on a preventive program.

England Plans Gifts to American Cities

London—Great Britain, through the Subgravy Institution, soon will make a number of gifts to the United States in the form of bronze statues or busts of men notable in the days of America's struggle for independence. A committee of prominent Britishers identified with the Subgravy Institution will leave for the United States early in September. After going to Washington they will tour the country and make the presentations.

The city of Washington will be given a bronze statue of Edmund Burke. Pittsburgh will be presented with a heroic bust of William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, after whom the Earl of Chatham will be named for the city.

There are also two busts of the late Lord Errol, author of "The American Commonwealth." One will be given to Washington, and the other to Trinity church, New York.

These gifts are intended as an expression of Britain's appreciation of similar tokens received from the United States.

METRIC SYSTEM IS BOOSTED HERE

U. S. and Great Britain Declared Only Countries Using Archaic Systems.

The present nation-wide movement for adoption of the metric system of weights and measures has a staunch supporter in John Arbuthnot, head of the science department at the Janesville High School. The system is now used in practically all countries except United States and Great Britain.

There is no doubt that to change over immediately from the present system to a new but far less complicated one, would be difficult. A slow change is what is necessary and what is in fact, now, going on. It remains for storekeepers, schools and what few in the industries do not use it, to change over, to make the system universal.

Nothing could be more simple than the metric system of weights and measures. It consists of three units of gram, for weighing solid objects such as are now weighed avoirdupois; liters for liquid measure; and meters for measuring plane objects, now measured by inches, feet and miles.

Would Replace Complicated System

These three would take the place of hundreds of measures and weights now used. A few of these are yards, fathoms, furlongs, rods, perches, links, feet, inches, chains, furlongs, fathoms, knots, hands, spans, two different quinque, quatern, quaterns, ounces, librae, drams, grams, scruples, pennyweights, three different hundredweights, two different stones, four different pounds, two different gallons, two different quarts, two different pints, gills, barrels, many different bushels, many pecks, dry measures, wet measure, beer measure, avoirdupois, apothecary, troy weight, and many others.

With a metric system, the same number of multiplication that is used for money would be used—the system of tons. Thus the gram is one unit, and a very small one. An object ten times as heavy would be the next unit, a decagram. Then there would be two decigrams, and on up to ten decigrams, which would be a centigram. Ten centigrams would be a milligram, or thousand grams.

The same prefixes, deci, centi, and milli, would be used also on liters, the liquid measure, and on meters.

The simplicities of the process was demonstrated by Mr. Arbuthnot. Take a small wooden block, that is, say 4 and 3-32-inches one way—this is to measure exactly 3 and 1-16 inches another, and 5 and 23-32 another. What is the cubic volume of the block? Any but an expert would require a considerable amount of time to find out.

Now take it by the metric system of measuring. A block might be 10 centimeters and two meters one way, and about the same measurement the other ways. All that would have to be done would be to reduce the whole thing to plain meters—a simple process—and multiply them.

Used in Science

The metric system is used extensively in teaching the sciences. It is hard at first for the students to become accustomed to it," Mr. Arbuthnot said. "But once they have, they can easily see how absurdly complicated our own system is."

"We really have the metric system in money, and some of the words are derived from those used in that system—cent, from cent, million from mille, decimal from dect. The word decade also comes from the metric system."

Industries also use the new system a great deal, even in commodity business dealings, and find it helps them. If a large factory can sell goods in this way of measuring and weighing, smaller stores and others should be able to use the system. I think a whole year in the time of students would be saved altogether, if the new system were adopted.

"I get frequent literature from the Association for Adoption of the Metric System, New York. Mr. Arbuthnot said. "But once they have, they can easily see how absurdly complicated our own system is."

CIVILIAN RELIEF BOARD IS ACTIVE

Nine Disabled Citizens Listed for Free Training—Others Sought.

The Rock county rehabilitation committee has been organized and has outlined plans for work to co-operate with the state board of vocational education.

The purpose of the committee is to collect money to help the disabled. Chairman, Rev. Henry Willmann; vice chairman, Leroy Horn; secretary, J. M. Dorrus; F. L. Smith, representing the employers; Mrs. Frank E. Clark, Federation of Clubs; Miss Alice Glenn, Red Cross; Dr. Thomas J. Snodgrass, Kiwanis club. The Rev. Mr. Willmann represents the associated charities; Leroy Horn, organized labor; and J. M. Dorrus, Rotarians, vocational school.

The committee will call a meeting of all persons in Rock county eligible to the training and other benefits provided by the federal and state rehabilitation laws. There are doubtless many others in the city and county who are entitled to the help afforded by this piece of legislation.

The committee desires reports concerning all persons incapacitated by accident or illness so they may be followed to the vocational in which they were formerly engaged. Any person over 14 years of age who has thus far not been rehabilitated and who has some physical disability, is eligible to receive a rehabilitation course provided he or she may be expected after completing such course, to engage in a remunerative occupation. Anything from a private tutor to a course in the state university is available, according to the needs and possibilities of the individual to be rehabilitated.

One should have no difficulty in locating a school by means of the map, and for those who wish to observe this remarkable phenomenon, we will give five times of the observations, minimum during the month of October: 6:15 a. m. on the sixth, 9:40 p. m. on the eighth, 6:30 p. m. on the eleventh, 2:30 p. m. on the fourteenth, 2:35 a. m. on the twenty-sixth, 11:45 p. m. on the twenty-eighth and 8:15 p. m. on the thirtieth. We are indebted for this data to the Monthly Evening Sky Map, for which they were calculated by W. A. Mason.

Many years ago an astronomer suggested a possible explanation of the Algol phenomenon, which has since been substantially established. It is as follows: Algol is not a single body, but is really composed of two, which revolve about their common center of gravity in orbits. The plane in which these orbits lie is so located that periodically one of the bodies moves into a position between us and the other body. Since there is only one minimum of brightness in each complete period, one of the stars must be bright, and the other one comparatively dim. The minimum occurs when the dark one obscures the brighter one; if both were of appreciable brilliancy there would be two minimum stages in each period, the relative intensity depending upon the relative luminosities of the components of the binary star.

Another Variable

Beta Lyrae, the second brightest star in the group Lyra, which contains Vega, is also a variable, although its variations are not by any means as remarkable in degree as those of Algol and can not be studied without a telescope. In this case, the variation depends mainly from a minimum and vice versa, without any period of constant luminosity, as in the case of Algol, and all the minimum of brightness are not of the same value. Alternate minima are all equal and less bright than the intervening ones, which are also all equal to one another. The maxima are all equal.

This type of light variation can also be explained by an eclipse theory. If the two stars composing the binary are both bright and are passing about each other in very close orbits the non-eclipse stage would be very short. Indeed, and the different minima would depend upon which of the two stars was being eclipsed. One of the stars may be assumed to be somewhat less bright than the other, which an eclipse theory does not fit so well, and there is no doubt still another cause for the variation in brightness of stars which are both normal and have an external nature which is not an eclipse of another body. We know that stars are great seething masses of incandescent gases with tremendous internal circulation, and we can well suppose this to give rise to periodic pulsations of a nature to strongly affect the radiating power of the star.

25 Artists in Little Symphony

The Little Symphony of Chicago, which will make its initial appear-

Since the increasing activities of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra

20-BLOCK PAVING PROGRAM FINISHED

Additional 1922 Work in Cemetery and Parkwood Addition Also Completed.

Janesville's 1922 paving program of 20 blocks, exclusive of considerable work in Oak Hill cemetery and Parkwood addition, was completed this week, when the Hayes-Fountain-Hayes company, Janesville, put the finishing touches on the Rock and Second street projects. These thoroughfares will be open for traffic probably within the next 10 days.

ALL WORK IS CONCRETE

All the work this year has been with reinforced concrete, with the exception of the cemetery job, which is plain concrete, and the result is the addition of some excellent stretches of permanent pavement. The Hayes firm of contractors, in its first year of paving, has done exceptionally good work for the city engineer's department.

The work done by the Janesville concern consists of seven blocks on Ringold street, from Ruger avenue to Racine, and one block on South Second, from Ringold to Fremont.

The remaining 12-block stretch of city work was paved in Blackhawk addition by Gund-Graham company, Prentor, and was completed in July. This job was on the 1921 program but was held over until this year.

PARKWOOD ADDITION FINISHED

Alexander W. Clegg, superintendent of paving in Oak Hill cemetery from the church connecting with the stretch laid last year, and west to a point near the reservoir, making a paved artery running directly through the property. The work was done under direction of the Oak Hill Cemetery association and was supervised by the city engineering department.

Paving in Parkwood addition, a private enterprise, was completed Thursday afternoon. Sewer and water mains were laid through the district several weeks ago and it is now in condition for home construction.

WILL HARDING RUN FOR SECOND TERM?

Belief in Washington That the President May Not Seek Re-election.

Washington — Discussion of the possibility of President Harding not asking a second term, either of his party or of the American people, has increased vastly since Mrs. Harding's severe illness.

In fact, were it not such an unprecedented prospect, coupled with the knowledge of the certain political pressure that will be brought to get his consent to be a candidate again, many here, including some intimate friends of the President, would regard it no longer as a possibility, but a certainty. They base this belief on what they know about the way Mr. Harding felt about the burden of the presidency before Mrs. Harding became so ill. And knowing the devotion that exists between the executive and his wife, and that her breakdown unquestionably was aggravated by the strain of being the "first lady of the land," many believe Mr. Harding cares less than ever for being President again.

No Doubt of Sincerity

As far as Washington knows generally, the President has not said he will or will not run again in 1924. As all Presidents before him have done, when worn down by the cares of the presidency, he has made reference from time to time to the joy with which he was looking forward to his return to private life. But when the time came to leave the White House it always found the occupant desirous of vindication and holding on—as long as the people were willing. In Mr. Harding's case there is not the slightest doubt of the sincerity of what he may say along that line, and he has told his worries to his friends. The only question is whether, when 1924 comes, he will be like the others and make a president and not a man of his own record.

Often it is heard here, in the talk that is ceaseless about every President, that Mr. Harding is "sick of his job." It isn't so much that he is sick of it, as he probably cares less for all the burdens of the presidency than any man who has sat in the White House, in modern years at least. And it is said that no President, including Woodrow Wilson, with all the strain of conducting the war, had much tougher problems before him than are being continuously before Mr. Harding.

Was an Unwilling Candidate
To understand how Mr. Harding looks upon the presidency now, or to be more accurate, how many people believe he regards it as his duty to go back to Mr. Harding before the next President. He was probably the most unwilling candidate who ever finally landed in the White House. Of course, he was quite willing to take the nomination, but it was obvious all along that there would be few tears shed by Mr. Harding himself if he didn't land it. He was quite content to go along as he was—a senator from a big state, enjoying a good income from his business, popular with his colleagues and getting about as much of life as one could and, at the same time, being moderately successful.

The cares of the presidency have weighed heavily upon him. Being elected President did not turn his head. He doesn't think he has done as badly as his detractors say he has; he probably feels that if the public understood all about every problem he has had to decide, it would not be so harsh in its judgment. Rather, to onlookers, he gives the picture of a man who is doing his level best to handle the tough jobs put on him and satisfied he has done the best he could and that the results are about as good as anyone else could do under the circumstances. But even long before Mrs. Harding became ill he began to show the strain. It was evidenced not in irritability, but an added seriousness of face and expression. There are many lines of worry in Warren Harding's face now—the lines that being President bring to a man in the days when they center more and more power in the one man in the White House, and at the same time, expect more from him.

Heard Criticism in Strike.
President Harding is not one of those individuals who shuts himself in a shell and hears only pleasant things about himself or thinks them. And he has had many difficulties since coming into the White House. A party man himself, with the party organization and regularity almost a fetish with him, the party organization in congress has been a constant worry to him. Leaders have been willing to go along when the President's views accorded with theirs. But with the party on Capitol Hill entertaining about as many views as there are brands of Republicans, and that is going some, anything like cohesive action has been out of the question. And the President had to carry a good deal of the heat of the disagreements of the party.

To sonatorial friends, Mr. Harding has made no secret of his opinion that being President wasn't all it was cracked up to be. And when the country began to rumble and roar over the lack of success in bringing the industrial war to an end, Mr. Harding did not shut his ears to it. The volume of discontent and criticism was a disappointment. At any rate, Mr. Harding has not tried to minimize it himself. He always recognizes it frankly in talking things over with his friends and recognizes it as one of the things that go along with the presidency. He gets comfort out of the thought if people understood the difficulties they would not be so free with their knocks.

Party Leaders Say Yes.
Mrs. Harding's illness, of course, has been a terrible strain and worry to him. If it were a question of her health and a second term, there isn't a particle of doubt what course the President would follow. But two years, provided she can lay aside much of the burden she imposed on herself in the way of entertainment and seeing cutters, may find her much better and not an element in the decision.

The subject sometimes comes up at the many political dinners. The party leaders say he will run; that a party has nothing except the President's record on which to go before the people in a presidential race. In other words, it would be up to him to make the race for his party, whether he cared to or not.

$900 JUDGMENT IS AWARDED McKEARN

John F. McKearn was given judgment of $900.00 and costs in municipal court here Thursday against Myron D. Detroff. The case involved $125 worth of repair work on the defendant's automobile and a $900 promissory note on which only a small payment had been made.

Mr. Ferris' Veto.
Just why Mr. Ferris, who was by no means a radical man when he was governor, should acquire all the Baker vote is not clear, though it is apparent he will win large blocks of progressive and liberal votes. The addition of the 125,000 votes wouldn't of course be enough to insure the election of Mr. Ferris. This much is certain—Mr. Ferris will poll the normal democratic vote and will draw to his banner on personal issues alone large parts of the republican strength. Unless the campaign should delineate the issues and develop unexpected fireworks, the forces of a close contest with Mr. Ferris and Townsend is what one is given by most persons of disinterested judgment in the political world heretofore. Two or three days of cold weather just before election might cause many republicans to stay at home and express that way their protest against the handling of the campaign here is the persistence of the wet and dry issue. Many of the nominees for office both in the state campaign and on the congressional tickets are wets. Many observers, including some newspaper editors here, predict a change in prohibition.

Wayne county voted 32,000 against prohibition originally, but the claim now is that the wets are getting a toe-hold in the other cities of the state. The cry for a modification of the Volstead act is raised here mostly because violation of the law is so conspicuous.

There are 40 nationalities in Detroit's population and the number of canonized saloons is on the increase. Many of the clubs are said to have real beer on draft and one hours tales of at least six breweries which are producing are genuine articles. Police records are a subject of controversy because the so-called "drunk court" proceedings not including those who were held overnight, scores being released during the night as soon as they sober up.

Michigan is near enough to Ohio to swing the latter to the right. It would be an exaggeration to say that the Volstead act is as yet in danger of being attacked by the votes of a wet delegation from Michigan but it is accurate to say the issue has by no means disappeared and that the real test of the Volstead law's permanency is not more than two or three years away as far as Michigan is concerned.

Wet and Dry Issue.
Not an insignificant aspect of the campaign here is the persistence of Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe.

Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil).

The inventor, F. D. Johnson, 50 W. Lake St., Chicago, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days FREE to any person who will give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it.

Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without expenditure of money, make $250 to $500 per month.

Music Federation Plans All-American Program

Chicago — The first all-American program to be given by the National Federation of Music clubs is being planned for the next biennial festival to be held in June, 1923, at Asheville, N. C.

During the last year the federation has established a monthly official bulletin, effected an affiliation with the Opera in Our Land, and conducted a presentation American Opera and has obtained co-operation with the National Concert Managers' association. Much of this work, say members, is due to the efforts of Mrs. John F. Lyons, who assumed the presidency Jan. 1.

The federation now is working on contents in voice, violin and piano, open to musicians under thirty years of age, and competitions in various branches of musical composition.

TWO HURT IN EXPLOSION

Appleton — Two men were slightly injured Wednesday afternoon at Sherwood when a steam boiler, used by a silo filling crew, exploded. Albert Martin was thrown 30 feet, but escaped with a few bruises and Nicholas Zindlinger was cut about the arms and head. The engine was buried 50 feet.

Love harmony of Ganna Walska, opera star, and Harold F. McCormick, harvester king, has struck a discord. Mme. Luella Melius, also an opera singer, is seeking to prevent her appearance in the U. S. McCormick promised her a career.

Mme. Luella Melius and, inset, Ganna Walska.

New York—Ganna must not sing. That is the ultimatum of Madame Luella Melius, opera star, which threatens to turn the harmony of Ganna Walska and Harold F. McCormick into a crashing discord.

And to back up her ultimatum Madame Melius declares that she will seek an injunction restraining the bride of the harvester king from appearing on the concert stage or in a grand opera in the United States.

Jealousy? Oh, no! Not in the least. Opera stars aren't that way even though Mary Garden once said, "Ganna can't sing," on the eve of her appearance in the title role of "Zemphira" with the New York Opera company. Incidentally, Ganna packed up and shook the dust of Chicago from her temperamental roots just before she was scheduled to appear.

Ganna has long expressed her ambition to appear in grand opera, but that was the closest she has ever come to a realization of her expressed desire in America.

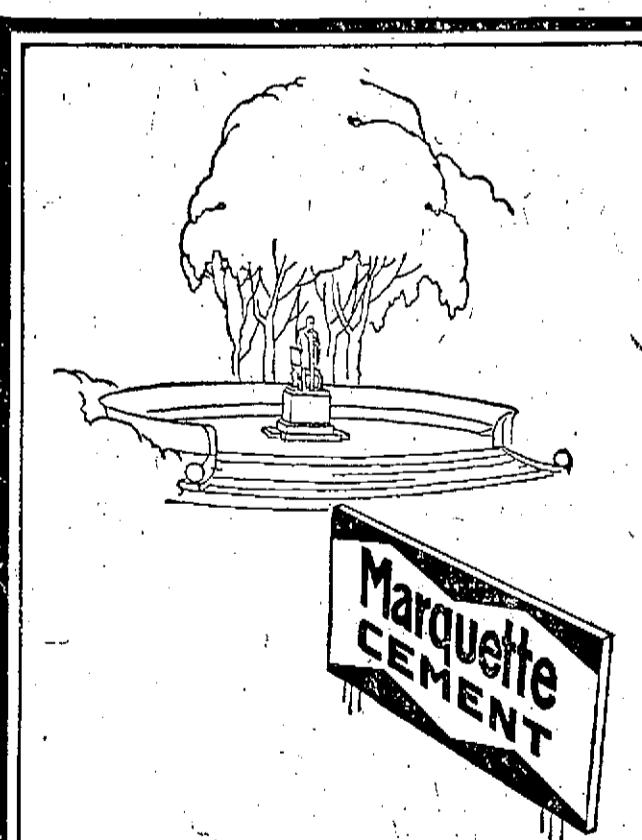

It is understood that before her marriage to McCormick, the millionaire angel of Chicago, grand opera was Ganna's ambition. An operatic career, in which case the action of Madame Melius may cause another heart and financial tangle in the widely advertised McCormick family.

Madame Melius charges that Jules Dalber, who is arranging a tentative tour for Ganna, is doing so in violation of his contract with her. She charges that he has not lived up to the date of his contract with her since May of

Lake in Hungary Slowly Drying Up

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Budapest — The biggest lake in Hungary, Lake Balaton, covering about 360 square miles, would appear slowly to be drying up. In some places the water has receded a mile from the old shore line within a few years and the shrinking continues.

No one can give an explanation particularly as there has been plenty of rain recently. Geologists say that volcanic changes in the bed of the lake are responsible.

FERRIS WILL GIVE TOWNSEND BATTLE AT MICHIGAN POLL

Mr. Ferris' Veto.

Again in Michigan as in Ohio, the public has the impression that Mr. Harding wasn't drin enough in the strike crisis. No one comes forward with a concrete suggestion as to what he might have done—opinion fluctuates on this point, but the public people criticize the president for not doing this, while the business men criticize him for what he didn't do.

Between the two elements the administration must exact some losses even in this realm of republicans and coal strikes. The supply of hard coal is as yet too uncertain to decide the fate of the candidates, but the party in power will suffer some losses here as elsewhere on that grievance.
